

Introduction

If you want to deliver Good and Outstanding care, and meet Care Quality Commission (CQC) standards, your service needs to have safe and competent staff, including leaders and managers.

Skills for Care helps adult social care employers to get the best from their most valuable resource - their people.

This guide outlines our practical support, including free guides, events and funding opportunities, to help leaders and managers to recruit, develop and lead their staff, retaining them from entry level right through to senior roles.

It also explains how we can help you to prepare for CQC assessment and improve your service.

If you're managing a new regulated service, we recommend that you read each section to find out how we can support you.

If you're managing an established service that's already familiar with Skills for Care, you can skip to the sections that are relevant for you.

If you're managing a service that's not registered with CQC, this guide might still be useful as a benchmark of good practice.

We recommend that all new and aspiring registered managers work towards the 'Level 5 Diploma in Leadership and Management for Adult Care'.

CQC might also recognise qualifications under previous systems, including:

- Registered Managers Award (RMA)

- NVQ Level 4 in Leadership and Management for Care Services

- NVQ Level 4 in Health and Social Care

- Level 5 Diploma in Leadership for Health and Social Care

- relevant nursing, physiotherapy, social work or occupational therapy qualification
- degree or masters degree related to social care.

Our practical resources and learning programmes can help you to ensure that registered managers have the skills and knowledge to do their job well, and can access support to run a well-led service.

Manager Induction Standards

CQC expects managers to have the right skills, knowledge and experience to run a well-led service.

The Manager Induction Standards set out what a manager needs to know and understand to perform well in their role.

The standards can form part of induction for new managers, or help your service to develop aspiring managers.

Existing managers can also use them to benchmark their own practice and identify any learning and development needs.

Developing new managers and deputies

Our latest research suggests that around 8,000 registered managers are due to retire in the next 15 years. The loss of a registered manager can have a significant impact on the quality of care and support.

Regulated services need to develop their emerging talent into future managers.

Our 'Developing new managers and deputies' online guide sets out how employers can provide opportunities to develop their workforce.

It promotes a blend of development opportunities, programmes and qualifications through a step-by-step approach to career progression.

It also includes useful checklists, downloads, practical examples and inspiring interviews with deputies and new managers.

Moving Up

This programme is for leaders from a Black, Asian and minority ethnic leaders background that already have experience managing a service and want to progress into more senior positions.

The programme focuses on the individual and will give delegates the tools and techniques to help them progress to where they want to be in their career.

You'll reflect on your own leadership skills, strengths and weaknesses, and learn how to improve your confidence, build your personal brand and motivation techniques.

Adult Social Care Workforce Data Set

The Adult Social Care Workforce Data Set is an online data collection service for the adult social care sector.

You can use it to record information about your workforce. For example, you can track training records, plan how many workers you need and use it to compare your business to other care providers locally or nationally.

It can also help you to monitor key performance indicators such as turnover, qualifications, demographics and pay.

New and existing users of the service now have access to special offers and discounts across our products including:

- 10% off values-based interviewing and valuable conversations bespoke seminars
- 10% off Registered Manager Membership
- 10% off digital modules for managers and CQC eLearning.

Support for nominated individuals

Most regulated providers have a nominated individual (sometimes called a responsible individual) that represents them with CQC. This could be the same person as the registered manager or someone different.

It's important that they have the right values, skills and knowledge to do their role.

We've grouped our resources that are relevant to nominated individuals on our website at: www.skillsforcare.org.uk/nominatedindividuals

Nominated individuals' handbook - a practical guide

Skills for Care has developed a new comprehensive guide aimed at nominated individuals, which provides practical advice and signposts to other resources and support available to help you in your role.

Whether you are new-to-post or an experienced nominated individual, or whether you hold a dual role as registered manager as well, this new resource considers key aspects of your role and shares top tips, so you continue to provide high-quality, person-centred care to the people you support.

Recruitment support

CQC expects regulated services to have enough staff, who have the right values and skills, to deliver high quality care and support.

Without it, services struggle to provide people with the safe and effective care that they need and deserve.

We can help CQC-regulated, adult social care services to:

- attract new staff

- recruit people with the right values

- understand the right recruitment checks, including DBS checks.

Developing your workforce

CQC expects regulated providers to ensure that staff have received appropriate training, supervision and workplace assessment so that they have the right skills and knowledge, and are competent, to carry out their role effectively.

Effective induction, learning and development and ongoing support are some of the ways to do this.

We can help CQC-regulated, adult social care services to:

- provide a thorough induction for new staff, that meets the Care Certificate standards

- plan and deliver ongoing learning and development

- use high quality, endorsed learning providers

- learn about funding to pay for qualifications and learning programmes.

Induction

Induction gives new staff the opportunity to learn about your organisation and the standards that you expect from them. This ensures that they're safe and competent to work with people who need care and support.

If you employ people with no previous care experience, in addition to covering basic core and mandatory training, you would also need them to undertake the new Care Certificate qualification in their first year.

An effective induction might also include learning about your organisation and its values, core skills and best practice.

You should tailor inductions to people's previous experience – for example experienced workers might only need a light induction, so you might refresh, but not duplicate, previous training and knowledge.

Apprenticeships

Apprenticeships are government-funded, work-based training programmes and can be completed by new or current workers.

They involve on and off-the-job training to help workers to develop job specific skills, get experience and complete qualifications.

There are a number of different apprenticeships to consider.

- Adult Care Worker (level 2)
- Lead Adult Care Worker (level 3)
- Lead Practitioner in Adult Care (level 4)
- Nursing Associate (Level 5)
- Leader in Adult Care (level 5)
- Registered Nurse (Level 6)

Find more guidance and advice about how apprenticeships work and funding at:

Supervision

Effective supervision can help you to support, empower and motivate staff so that they perform well at work.

It can also help you to check that they understand their role and have the right skills and knowledge to do it, and gives you the opportunity to discuss their performance.

Preparing for assessment

CQC assessments are usually unannounced so it's important that you're prepared.

We can help CQC-regulated, adult social care services to:

- know what CQC inspectors will look at during an assessment

- access courses, events and checklists to ensure you are prepared

- gather and share the right evidence for assessment.

Delivering good and outstanding care

CQC fundamental standards ensure that adult social care services provide the high quality, person-centred care and support that people expect and deserve.

A Good and Outstanding rating indicates that a service meets these standards.

We can help CQC-regulated, adult social care services to:

- understand what the CQC will be looking at and what will need to be evidenced

- learn from 'good' and 'outstanding' rated providers about what sets them apart

- access checklists, actions plans and other resources to help you to excel.

GO Guide: Single Assessment Framework version

To complement our Inspection toolkit, Skills for Care has updated our Good and Outstanding care guide.

The new GO Guide is shaped around the CQC Single Assessment Framework and provides insight into how to evidence the Quality Statements. Across 300-pages, the guide explains the step-by-step approach to impress inspectors.

The GO Guide is freely available in PDF format for all Skills for Care Registered Manager Members and can be additionally purchased in a new print edition.
